Panel ruffled over charter requests

By SCOTT B. BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Town Charter Revision Commission Vice Chairman Stephen T. Penny said he will not budge on several of the areas in the commission's report that it has been asked to reconsider by the Republican majority of the Board of Directors.

The commission is scheduled to meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Lincoln Center hearing room to review a list of changes to its report recommended by the directors.

Among the items to be reconsidered are the commission's recommendations to keep the system of electing a part-time treasurer, to double the salaries of town directors and to hold off a recall provision for elected officials. The directors also disagreed with the recommendation to make the full-time assistant town attorney subject to the personnel rules for regular town employees.

The commission has 30 days to formally respond to the directors' recommendations.

Despite Penny's statement, commission Chairman Vincent L. Diana said the commission will consider all of the directors' recommendations.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors last week to review the commission's report, Republican Deputy Mayor Ronald Osella criticized the commission's recommendation to keep an elected part-time treasurer versus an appointed full-

Agenda cause pushed

By SCOTT B. BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Members of the ad hoc committee to implement Agenda for Tomorrow recommendations said Tuesday they will use the fall elections to support their cause.

If the group gets the candidates' stances on items in the Agenda for Tomorrow report on public record, it may be able to use those comments to its advantage, said Committee Chairman Charles Colpitts.

People who worked on the Agenda for Tomorrow report will know how the candidates feel on the report's recommendations, Colpitts said. The group may also receive support from candidates elected into office who respond in favor of the Agenda during their candidacies.

But committee member Robert Gorman Jr. questioned the Agenda's political clout. Outside of the 173 people who worked on the report, how well versed are voters on issues in the report, Gorman asked.

M. Philip Susag, the chairman of the Agenda's original steering committee, said the group's political weight is considerable. "It was probably the biggest citizens' effort in quite some time," he said.

Susag cautioned the group not to tag the Agenda with a political party. He also suggested that the members work with the League of Women Voters in the fall to set up a question-and-answer forum for the candidates. The candidates could be questioned on how they stand on the agenda.

Regardless of its effect on the upcoming elections, getting the agenda involved in the elections will place the report in the public eye, Gorman said.

In the past few months, the committee has worked to get the report

CENTRAL COMMAND — Billy Mackie, an employee of Della Construction Co. of Enfield, appears to be the central figure in activity Tuesday afternoon at Main Street and Hartford Road in Manchester as he directs a payloader operator to lift a steel plate used to support a box culvert. The efforts are part of the drainage improvements underway at the intersection.

Bailout costs expand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. says he may ask Congress for an additional $60 billion to $80 billion to mop up the savings and loan industry rescue.

L. William Seidman also says he wants to merge the two boards that oversee the bailout effort.

In testimony being prepared for delivery to the Senate Banking Committee on Thursday, Seidman estimated how much would be required to finish the job by the end of September 1992. The bailout agency, the Resolution Trust Corp., has already had $80 billion appropriated to it to cover losses in failed savings and loans.

The additional appropriation would bring the total cost to $140 billion to $160 billion, which Seidman said was the equivalent of the administration's year-old estimate of $130 billion, adjusted for inflation.

Seidman said in a telephone interview Tuesday night that he also believes the agency will need to borrow $30 billion to $40 billion, short term, until it can sell the assets of the failed thrifts. The agency had previously planned to borrow more than $100 billion in such short-term funds, which it refers to as working capital.

Separately, Seidman said he may propose to create a single, nine-member board to run the bailout agency. That would eliminate the dual board structure which many members of Congress have criticized as awkward and inefficient.

"The original structure made sense when we got started but now its time to move on to the next step," he said.

Seidman said the ideas are contained in a draft of testimony he will present later and cautioned that details are still being discussed and may well change by the time he delivers the testimony.

Assembly no closer to budget agreement

HARTFORD (AP) — The 1991-92 state budget year begins in just 12 days with little progress being made on reaching agreement among Democrats, Republicans and the independent governor on a spending and tax plan.

Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., meanwhile, is asking agency heads to draw up plans for protecting state property and the public health and safety if no budget is in place by June 30.

On Tuesday, there were several closed-door meetings, but no visible sign of concrete progress on resolving the crucial question of whether the budget should include a new tax on wages.

Republican and Democratic House and Senate leaders got together Tuesday to kick around variations of an income tax plan. But they also acknowledged that a new version of a conventional sales tax-based plan was being worked up, along with a "continuing resolution" to keep government functioning if a budget hasn't been adopted by June 30, the last day of the current fiscal year.

Weicker wants no part of a continuing resolution.

He vetoed the bipartisan no-income-tax budget that cleared the House and Senate earlier this month and is still pushing for tax reform: an income tax coupled with cuts in the sales and business taxes.

It appears increasingly likely that the Republicans, who provided crucial votes on the first plan, will for the most part sit on their hands during the income tax debate and simply vote against it. If a vote then comes up on a conventional plan, they'll be back in the game.

The discussions remained stalled over the rate of any income tax and what levels of income would be exempt. Proposed rates began as low as 4 percent and went as high as 9 percent, while income levels at which the tax would start ranged from $25,000 to $100,000 for joint return filers.

And House and Senate Democrats appeared to be headed in opposite directions on new models of a state income tax. While

Congress to demand greater IRS audits

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nearly unanimous House is seeking to require the Internal Revenue Service increase the number of tax audits of high-income individuals and corporations.

Democrats offered the proposal to underline their argument that federal tax policy is tilted markedly against the middle class after 10 years of Republican control of the White House.

But Republicans quickly saw the futility of fighting the amendment and jumped on the bandwagon.

The amendment, to a bill containing $19.7 billion for the Treasury Department, Postal Service, White House and several agencies in 1992, was approved Tuesday on a 411-1 vote. Only Rep. Phil Crane, R-Ill., opposed it.

The amendment, sponsored chiefly by Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., would require the IRS to cut $13 million from its mail-audit program, whose targets generally are low- and middle-income people.

The money would be used to increase face-to-face audits of corporations and those with incomes over $100,000.

"I do not believe that our system of tax compliance should have one set of rules for the working people of the United States, the people who pay their taxes, and a looser set of rules for the people who can afford to pay but who may be shirking their burden," Gephardt said.

The bill was passed, 349-48, and sent to the Senate.

Approval came after a dispute over Vice President Dan Quayle's taxpayer-financed golfing outing to Augusta, Ga., was put aside and after Rep. James Traficant, D-Ohio, showed his anger with managers of the bill by forcing deletion, one by

Shelter hosts sought

By RICHARD RANGOON
Manchester Herald

HEBRON — AHM Youth Services is looking for a special family to open their home to troubled youths in the Andover-Hebron-Marlborough area.

The closest shelter for runaways is in Danielson, in the northeast corner of the state, said AHM Youth Services Executive Director Joel Rosenberg, who is leading the effort to bring one to the Andover-Hebron-Marlborough area.

The home would be administered by YES-3, The Youth Emergency Service of the Louisiana Youth Services Bureau, which has state funds

News In Brief

VA drugs under investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drugs from Department of Veterans Affairs pharmacies are being channeled into illegal drug markets because of an "appalling" lack of supervision, a congressional investigatory agency said today.

"Pharmacy employees have been able to steal a wide range of addictive prescription drugs over periods of time ranging from several months to several years," as a result of lax controls, the General Accounting Office said.

The GAO report was released at a hearing of the House Veterans Affairs subcommittee on oversight and investigations.

Transportation bill nears passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate neared passage of a five-year, $123 billion transportation bill after agreeing to compensate states that claim they were shortchanged during construction of the Interstate Highway System.

The Senate on Tuesday approved a plan by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., to distribute to most states over the next five years an $8.2 billion surplus in the Highway Trust Fund.

That broke a prolonged deadlock over the spending formula by which federal highway aid is distributed, answering, at least for now, complaints by some states that they had paid far more into the trust fund in gasoline taxes than they had received in highway aid.

Troops withdraw

ZAKHO, Iraq (AP) — Allied combat forces protecting resettled Kurdish refugees in northern Iraq have begun to withdraw, and coalition troop strength has dropped more than 40 percent since mid-May, military spokesmen said today.

The pullout comes in the midst of a debate among allied governments over the length of the occupation. The British, French, Dutch and Italian governments have expressed concern about a speedy withdrawal, saying they are worried about the fate of the Kurds once the allies leave.

The United States appears to be more eager to pull out. In late May, Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said coalition forces would be home "sooner than expected."

Albania joins Western group

BERLIN (AP) — Foreign ministers from Europe and North America today formally ended Albania's decades-long isolation by admitting the former Stalinist country into the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe.

The ministers opened the two-day CSCE session in the old German Reichstag by unanimously accepting Albania as the 35th member of the organization.

Recipe

1 cup croutons, lightly seasoned and toasted (optional)
1 cup of half-and-half or a mock cream

Preparation:

Soak lentils at least 6 hours in the water.

After soaking, heat water and lentils until simmering.

In another pot, add the oil and saute the vegetables until they become limp, about 5 minutes.

Add the vegetables to the pot of lentils, cover and simmer until lentils are tender or easily mashed (15 to 20 minutes).

Puree all of this in a blender or food processor, a small quantity at a time. Return to pot or kettle. Add water if the puree is too thick.

Add worcestershire sauce, redbot sauce, salt, pepper to taste.

Stir in cream and allow to simmer for 3-4 minutes.

To serve:

Lightly saute the thinly sliced onion, parsley, chives and rosemary for use as a garnish. Place aside.

Add the tarragon vinegar to the pot just before serving and stir.

Ladle the soup into colorful bowls and add the sauteed onion slices, rosemary, chives and parsley on top. Add a few croutons, if desired.

Comments from the cook:

This soup may be served hot, warm or cold. It will keep well under refrigeration, but must be covered.

Recipe can be doubled.

CDBG proposal readied

By BRIAN M. TROTTA

MANCHESTER — The town will hold a public hearing tonight to hear ideas for spending federal grant money, but some of those who would benefit from the program have already done some brainstorming.

The town is eligible to receive $435,000 this year through the federal Community Development Block Grant program, which would benefit low- and moderate-income residents. Last week, the Board of Directors approved the town's reentry into the program, more than 10 years after residents first voted against it.

Since last week's approval, leaders of several area groups that work with the town's low-income residents have been meeting to determine some possible uses for the money, said town Director of Human Services Hanna Marcus.

The meetings have included representatives of all the town's Human Services divisions and the Manchester Community Services Council, Child and Family Services Inc. and the Manchester Area Conference of Churches.

The group will submit a report on their findings at the public hearing at 7 tonight in the hearing room at Lincoln Center.

Marcus said the group's highest priority is the creation of affordable housing and the rehabilitation of the existing residences. Most of the work would be concentrated in the downtown area, but there are pockets of housing in need of work all over town, Marcus said.

Nancy Carr, executive director of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, said substance abuse is one of the biggest problems in the downtown area, and the group will propose new programs to help residents with alcohol and drug abuse problems.

The group will propose a sobering-up center for residents of the downtown area who need a place to go, but do not require medical help, Carr said. The center would also provide substance abuse counseling.

Other proposals include providing additional day-care subsidies for low-income working mothers, and a community outreach worker for low-income families.

Low-income elderly residents are also a concern, and several programs will be proposed to help them.

Timetable mulled for charter

COVENTRY — The town's Charter Revision Commission will meeting at 7:30 tonight to discuss the timetable for proposed changes in the Town Charter.

The meeting has been scheduled because of a filing error in the Town Clerk's office.

The office did not meet a statutory deadline of publishing the commission's recommendations within 30 days of the Town Council's acceptance of the recommendations. They were accepted at the council's first meeting in April.

The only new item expected to be discussed at tonight's meeting is the date in which the proposed changes would take effect, said Commission Chairwoman M. Deborah Walsh.

The commission is recommending the changes take effect immediately following November's referendum on the proposed revisions, Walsh said.

If voters approve the charter revisions, automatic budget referendums would be held and petitions for such referendums would no longer be accepted, Walsh said.

Bolton official resigns

BOLTON — Not only will First Selectman Robert Morra be facing a new Board of Selectmen this July, he will be missing the one person he described as having the "no-nonsense approach" to government. And gone will be the person who could explain the multifaceted complexities of government as easily as reciting the simplest recipe.

Executive Assistant to the board, Helen Kemp, is leaving.

Kemp wants to become a lawyer and she will attend Boston University law school this fall. Her resignation will end a two-and-a-half year tenure.

"She was a refreshing person...not a 'yes person,'" Morra said. "She told you [something] whether you wanted to hear it or not...that's the way government should work."

Morra said Kemp worked closely

Sununu safari

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu, who plays the bad cop to President Bush's good cop in political Washington, find himself in predictable circumstances these days. When it was revealed recently that Mr. Sununu's penchant for travel around the country on military aircraft had cost taxpayers nearly $400,000, the long list of enemies he has accumulated since January 1989 quickly closed in for the kill.

In fact, as ethical transgression go, Sununu's are not exactly venal: Senior White House personnel are apparently encouraged to fly in military planes in order to stay in constant contact with the President. And most of these trips were "officials business," or so we're told. Eyebrows have been raised about some junkets to resorts that included speeches to trade organizations — but members of Congress do the same, and worse, which might explain why Capitol Hill has been noticeably silent about the matter.

It should be noted that Sununu's partisans, if there are any, have been noticeably silent as well. Of course, no one expects the former governor of New Hampshire to return unexpectedly to Concord anytime soon, but this episode has been revealing. In an administration devoted to ethical propriety, Sununu's behavior — and his seeming indifference to conflicts and appearances — has become a festering wound.

Every President needs a trusted assistant to do the heavy lifting: To take the heat for unpopular decision, to put the pressure on recalcitrant senators, to work things out with disgruntled constituencies. And John Sununu's abrasive manner and well-advertised IQ must have seemed lke ideal qualifications for his present assignment.

But in politics there is a difference between playing hard ball and throwing beanballs, and Sununu seems to revel in offensive tactics. To be sure, it doesn't take much effort to disturb the serenity of, say, congressional windbags such as Robert Byrd; but when the personality of the chief of staff becomes a point of contention, and stands in the way of compromise or progress, then the chief of staff is ill-serving his chief.

Part of the problem might be the nature of the job itself. One of Sununu's recent predecessors, Donald Regan, the onetime CEO of Merrill Lynch, spoke of himself as a kind of "prime minister" in the Reagan White House, and tended to treat Cabinet secretaries, members of Congress, real prime ministers, and even the boss's wife, Nancy Reagan, as junior members of the firm.

Not very smart.

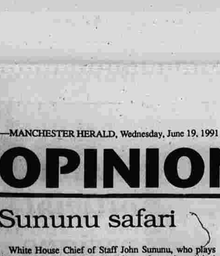

The bigger they come, the harder they fall: Now that Sununu has given his enemies some ammunition, we'll count the number of friends who stand up to defend him.

Agents fight bias

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Opponents of fresh civil rights legislation would like you to believe that Americans are already protected by plenty of equal employment laws. But the truth is that even the federal government isn't color blind.

Hispanic agents in the FBI, in a celebrated lawsuit, blamed the agency for treating them like second-class citizens. Hispanic agents for the U.S. Customs Service are embroiled in a similar suit. They risk their lives in the war on drugs, just like the white agents do, but they say they are passed over for promotions while their Anglo counterparts climb the ladder. And those who protest spend more time fighting retaliation from the good-old-boy network than fighting drug lords.

Special Agent Seve Mercado knows the feeling all too well. The story of what happened to him is making the rounds in Customs and angering those who aren't part of the the good-old-boy network. Mercado scored a major coup in the drug war — one you probably read about. But you didn't read his name in connection with it.

Mercado was in charge of Customs enforcement for the border town of Douglas, Ariz., in November 1989 when he got a tip about a bizarre new drug-smuggling avenue — a tunnel dug from Agua Prieta, Mexico, to Douglas. Mercado reported the tip to his superiors, but they did not move on his report. Mercado then asked for digging equipment, but was ignored. Unwilling to give up, he put his personnel on surveillance duty at a local construction site looking for any sign of a tunnel entrance.

It was not until March 1990, after the head of the Customs office in Phoenix heard rumors about the tunnel, that the agency decided to move in. But for Mercado, that meant moving out. He was shunted aside to work as the liaison to Mexican authorities in the investigation.

His superiors in the Customs hierarchy came to Douglas, took over the investigation and stuck with it as it turned into a headline story. The tunnel began right under the estate of Mexican drug lord Francisco Rafael Camarena. In early May 1990, Mercado sat on the sidelines as Customs agents raided the operation. They secretly watched Camarena and other suspects emerge from the Arizona end of the tunnel and followed them to Phoenix where Customs seized 2,258 pounds of cocaine. Ironically, Camarena was allowed to deliver the drugs and leave the scene. He is now a fugitive from justice.

The tunnel was front-page news, obscuring the fact that the drug lord got away. "Tunnel Buster — Operation Catacomb" T-shirts were printed, state and national politicians toured the tunnel, and "America's Most Wanted" geared up to make the incident even more famous.

Meanwhile, Mercado was shipped off to Tucson for the menial task of translating wire taps from Spanish. Fed up, he filed a racial discrimination complaint against the Customs officials who had taken him off the case. Later, because he doesn't like confrontation and because he feared retaliation, Mercado settled the complaint informally. But his troubles were far from over.

Documents show that last August, he was reassigned to the border town of San Luis. The car he was issued broke down, so for the next seven months he fought the drug war in the desert in a 1978 Jeep without air conditioning, without a Customs radio, without a bullet-proof vest and without binoculars. There was little help from Customs, and Mercado found himself either making drug arrests alone or asking the local police for help. Only recently has he been issued proper equipment.

Meanwhile, two of the superiors who took over his tunnel investigation have been transferred to the Customs headquarters in connection with a reorganization there. Federal regulations require government agencies to use fair and open competition for jobs to ensure that everyone has an equal chance at the promotion. But a December 1990 draft memo about the reorganization at the Washington Customs headquarters, which opened up more than a dozen new jobs, shows that these jobs were filled before the vacancies were even announced. Apparently it isn't what you know, but who you know in Customs that counts.

Our associate Dean Boyd asked Assistant Commissioner for Customs Enforcement John Hensely about the memo. Hensely said the people listed in that memo as designees for the new jobs were only "acting" officials until the selection process was over. Yet there is no mention of "acting" in the memo. And Customs sources tell us that those invited to serve in the "acting" jobs often end up securing the permanent positions.

Shielding pols and docs

WASHINGTON — Two little-noticed recent Supreme Court decisions will have wide-ranging and ironic ramifications: One makes it much harder to prosecute crooked politicians. The other makes it more difficult for hospitals to ban incompetent physicians.

Here is what you can expect to happen in each case:

In the first ruling, the court all but said that the only crooked politicians who should go to jail are very stupid crooked politicians.

The case involved a West Virginia state legislator, Robert McCormick, who was accused of accepting a bribe in exchange for sponsoring legislation. In 1984, McCormick solicited contributions from a lobbyist representing a group of doctors; then, in 1985, he successfully sponsored legislation that helped them out of their troubles with state licensing officials.

The U.S. attorney in West Virginia brought federal charges against McCormick for violation of the Hobbs Act, a federal law that prohibits any officeholder — federal, state or local — from performing an official act in exchange for compensation, a gratuity or a contribution. McCormick was convicted, and the conviction was later upheld by the Court of Appeals.

McCormick challenged the conviction on the grounds that the Hobbs Act requires very specific proof that he had made an explicit promise of action in exchange for the contribution, and that no evidence had been presented at his trial about such a specific bargain.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices agreed. Writing for the majority, Justice Byron White said: "Servicing constituents and supporting legislation ... is the everyday business of a legislator. It is also true that campaigns must be run and financed.... Whatever ethical considerations and appearances might indicate, to hold that legislators commit the federal crime of extortion when they act for the benefit of constituents or support legislation furthering their interess shortly before or after campaign contributions are solicited is an unrealistic assessment of what Congress could have meant by making it a crime to obtain property from another, with his consent, under the color of office."

Practically speaking, the decision will make it all but impossible to prosecute a public official for accepting a bribe, absent a very explicit quid-quo-pro promise — I will do this if you pay me so much — and unless the official has been foolish enough to put it in writing or otherwise have left conclusive proof.

This has significant ramifications to a dozen prosecutions of public officials now planned nationwide, and will possibly let some members of Congress now under investigation off the hook.

Additionally, the Supreme Court has accepted for argument next term a Georgia case involving a bribe to a public officials. The court is being asked to determine if it is a violation if the public official did not solicit it, but rather the contributor came to him.

In its other decision, the Supreme Court ruled that a doctor denied hospital privileges could bring suit against the facility under federal antitrust law.

The decision was a technical ruling that has to do with the breath and scope of federal antitrust law. But, potentially, it has widespread implications in the area of physician peer review.

The case involved Los Angeles ophthalmologist Simon Pinhas who was stripped of his hospital privileges by Midway Hospital Center. He brought and antitrust suit, claiming a conspiracy by his competitors to drive him out of business.

He had stopped using a second surgeon during eye operations — as required by the hospital — because he believed it needlessly drove up patient costs.

The hospital denied this, arguing that, even if true, peer review by physicians falls outside antitrust law.

Pinhas argued that what was at stake was the cost of medical care. The hospital argued that what was at stake was the whole system of peer review in which doctors try to keep incompetent physicians out of hospitals.

However, the Bush administration — and the attorneys general in 22 states who entered the case on Dr. Pinhas' side — said what was at stake was how the Sherman Antitrust Act applied to the case: specifically, how the phrase "interstate commerce" was to be interpreted.

Ultimately, the court decided 5-4 that the definition of interstate commerce is elastic enough to cover physician peer review. That is a victory for those who believe in federal trust enforcement, but it presents real problems for physician regulation.

It is now common for a doctor who is denied privileges to bring suit against the hospital and physicians who have negatively reviewed his fitness. By definition, these are almost always local doctors with the same specialty — in other words, competitors.

This decision will make it easier for these suits to be brought.

Although a hospital can still prevail by proving the physician incompetent, having to air such dirty laundry in public — and the high cost of litigation — may make some hospitals wary of opening themselves to such suits.

New Nixon ammunition

The latest batch of Richard Nixon's secret White House tape recordings has been released — and just in time, too. He was down to about half a dozen enemies, by my count. But the new revelations ought to stem the slippage a bit, maybe even recruit a few new bashers to the cause.

It's not easy, keeping a grudge going against The Trick. A quarter of the current population — 64 million people or so — wasn't even born when he resigned the presidency 17 years ago. Then there's the American propensity to forgive and especially to forget. And Nixon himself has been laboring mightily to rebuild his image, to make us wonder why we got so worked up about Richard, the innocuous intellectual, in the first place.

For years, he sat under his banyan tree in northern New Jersey, cultivating the aura of an elder statesman as he dispensed snippets of wisdom to visiting pundits and scholars. Then he wrote another memoir, seeking to dispel the "myths" that had been constructed about him. Last year, he opened a private "library" in Southern California, in which the real Nixon story is told through "interpretive exhibitry." In the meantime, he has continued his fact-gathering trips abroad, his multi-page, single-spaced letters of advice to President Bush and his occasional "seminars" to lawmakers and mandarins in Washington.

As a result, normally reliable Nixon haters have been falling like tenpins. A new book, "Silent Coup: The Removal of a President" by Len Colodny and Robert Gettlin, purports to show that the real culprit behind the Watergate burglary was White House counsel John Dean. Respected New York Times columnist Tom Wicker has written a sympathetic review of Nixon's career. Another Times columnist, Anthony Lewis, recently described Nixon as "progressive." Former CBS newsman Daniel Schorr, once investigated by Nixon's FBI, ran into the former president on an elevator, shared a few laughs, and exited with amicable relations restored.

But just as the blarney was getting disgustingly deep, Richard Nixon himself, as he has so often done in the past, rode to the rescue. Some 60 hours of secretly recorded White House conversations from 1971-1973 were released by the National Archives and once again we heard the paranoid, vindictive, spiteful, caustic, coarse, ruthless, brutal Unindicted Co-Conspirator in vulgar discourse with his top aides.

We heard the Sage of Saddle River suggest that someone take a look at George McGovern's income tax files. "Goddamn it," he snarled, "sneak in in the middle of the night." We heard Mahatma Dick's enthusiastic response to a proposal that Teamster "thugs" be recruited to beat up peace demonstrators. "They've got guys who will go in and knock their heads off," he said. We heard the former leader of the free world waxing anti-Semitic. "Aren't the Chicago Seven all Jews?" he asked.

So once again, the amnestic American people are reminded of what Richard Nixon and Watergate were really all about: gutter politics and immorality. Yellowing clips from files of yesteryear list at least two dozen crimes committed or considered by the man and his minions: Theft, flight to avoid prosecution, malicious mischief, extortion, embezzlement, falsifying government documents, campaign finance violations, contempt of Congress, contempt of court, perjury, conspiracy to commit crimes, illegal wiretapping and bugging, and on and on.

As they have before, Nixon's latest crisis will pass — perhaps in time for the Grand Old Party to invite its re-re-re-re-re-rehabilitated Elder Statesman to address its convention. Erstwhile critics will applaude and fawn over him and offer the profound observation that 17 years of Watergate is enough.

Let other Trick Trashers repent, fickle traitors that they are. However lonely the crusade, this Curmudgeon will never tire of warning that only fools would buy previously owned vehicles from this man.

Andover library plans events

ANDOVER — Andover Public Library will begin its summer reading program, Andover "25" Reading Club, with registration on Wednesday, June 19 at 1 p.m. Any child entering kindergarten through grade 6 in the Fall is eligible to participate. The program will continue through July 31, 1991. During the six weeks participants will be asked to read 25 minutes each day for 25 of the 42 days. Incentive prizes will be given at the completion of five days and fifteen days to help encourage the readers to complete the full program. Complete details are available upon registration. For those unable to attend on Wednesday afternoon a second registration will be held on Friday, June 21 from 7-9 p.m.

Concurrent with the Andover "25" Reading Club the Library is sponsoring special events and activities this Summer. Anyone may participate in these events regardless of their participation in the Reading Club. The schedule is as follows:

June 19, 1 p.m. — "Razzi the Clown" will appear to entertain during registration for the Summer Reading Program. All are welcome.

June 26, 1 p.m. — Movies and popcorn at the Library.

July 3, 1 p.m. — ROBOTACTS from Thames Science Center (registration requested).

July 10, 10 a.m. — Hop River Chamber Music Children's Concert with storytime. This will be held at Andover Congregational Church.

July 10, 2 p.m. — Model rockets (registration required).

July 17, 10 a.m. — Mystic Marinelife Aquarium Program "Burst Your Bubble." Special activities for younger and older children. (Registration requested).

July 24, 10 a.m. — Farm tour to be held at the Rhinelander Farm.

July 31, 9:15 a.m. — Bus trip to the New England Trolley Museum in East Windsor. (Registration and admission fee requested).

August 1, 7 p.m. — Lemonade Social featuring entertainment by Mallory Bagwell, a mime and performance artist. Awards will also be presented to those completing the Summer Reading Club. All are welcome. This will be held at the Andover Grange Hall on Route 6.

For more information, call the library at 742-7428.

Rec Dept. activities planned

COVENTRY — The Coventry Recreation Department, in conjunction with the Coventry Lion's Club, are sponsoring a Peanutbutterjam concert on Wed., June 26, 7-7:45 p.m. The concert will be held at the Patriot's Park band shell. Bring a blanket or a chair and enjoy incredibly spreadable family fun with humorous songs and imaginative puppets. No charge.

The Coventry Rec Dept. is also sponsoring a trip to Riverside Amusement Park in Agawam, MA. The trip is on Saturday, June 29. A bus will leave Coventry from Second Congregational Church on Route 44 at 11:15 a.m. and will return approximately at 6 p.m.

The fee for the trip is $16 for ages 8 and older, and $14 for 3-7 year olds. Children in grades 5 and up may attend unescorted; an adult must accompany anyone younger.

Register at the Coventry Rec Dept. in the Town Hall by Thursday, June 27. For more information, call 742-9074.

Coventry Youth Soccer is forming a summer soccer program for girls ages 13-19. Registration and first practices will be held on Wednesday, June 19 and Monday, June 24 from 6-8 p.m. at the Captain Nathan Hale soccer field. In case of rain on those dates, site will be located at the Coventry High School gym. For more information, call Ken Russell at 742-9786.

Red Cross cites donors

MANCHESTER — Staff and students at Howell Cheney Regional Technical School have been cited by the American Red Cross for donating to the blood drives.

Lewis Randall, director at the school, has his one gallon pin. Staff members Kathy Burr, who is in charge of worker recruitment and training, and Richard Westbrook, who is in charge of donor recruitment, have donated five and eight gallons respectively. They are also phereis donors.

Three students at the school, Daniel Rodriguez and Dennis Zawistowski of Manchester and Robert Hill of South Windsor, have donated more than one gallon of blood and each received a one gallon pin on April 10.

Lieberman proposes global warming law

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to combat global warming filed by three New England lawmakers may have a long road before becoming law.

The measure, filed Tuesday by Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., and Sens. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., and John Chafee, R-R.I., among others, seeks to address growing concerns in the scientific community about global warming.

But the Bush administration is likely to oppose the bill, its sponsors acknowledge, and a lobbyist for electric utilities said Congress may not want to pass major air pollution legislation less than a year after making major changes in the Clean Air Act.

Although the research is inconclusive, the lawmakers said the consequences of doing nothing may be too great to be worth the risk.

"One of the most important environmental goals of our time is what we're trying to address in this legislation and that is the reduction of carbon dioxide emissions," Lieberman said. "They threaten to warm our planet, to change our climate."

Carbon dioxide, one of the byproducts of combustion, accounts for more than half of the gases believed to contribute to global warming. The United States, with 5 percent of the world's population, generates more than 20 percent of its carbon dioxide emissions.

The legislation would require utilities and large manufacturers planning to open new plants to buy pollution "credits" that would offset their added carbon dioxide pollution.

The company could buy credits from other businesses that took anti-pollution measures. Other businesses or organizations could earn credits and sell them to utilities or industries by a variety of methods.

Troopers reconsider deal

ROCKY HILL (AP) — The threat of 96 state police officers being laid off has prompted their union to reconsider a decision to reject contract concessions Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. is seeking to balance the state budget.

Rank-and-file members of the Connecticut State Police Union voted 199-22 Tuesday night to reconsider the package they rejected earlier this month. The police union was the only state employee union to reject Weicker's wage concessions.

The vote Tuesday night follows an announcement by the Weicker administration that it would layoff 96 troopers July 1 and reduce specialized units if the union does not reverse its original decision.

"We think the vote is a strong indication that the troopers want to save jobs and avoid drastic reductions in specialized units," said union spokesman David McCluskey.

Union President Robert Kowalczyk said the annual general membership meeting Tuesday night — usually attended by about 30 members — was marked by "a very close feeling of troopers caring about their brother officers."

Union members earlier voted 783-71 to accept layoffs rather than wage concessions.

Public Safety Commissioner Nicholas Cioffi attributed 82 of the layoffs to the union's refusal to accept salary concessions the Weicker administration had negotiated with leaders from all state employee unions. The other 14 were because of budget cuts.

Cioffi said last week that the layoffs, will require the elimination of the department's recruiting unit, as well as jobs cuts in 20 of the agency's specialized units.

Leaders push tax reform

HARTFORD (AP) — A coalition of Connecticut business leaders is urging the Legislature to adopt a flat-rate income tax, as well as cuts in other taxes, "to create a pro-jobs business climate."

In newspaper advertisements that began appearing this week, the business leaders urged residents to pressure their representatives in the General Assembly to support a budget that includes tax reform as well as new controls on state spending.

"The issue is jobs," the advertisements read. "We must rebuild Connecticut's business climate now, by resolving our state's fiscal crisis and improving our business tax competitiveness."

The ad campaign is sponsored by the Connecticut Business and Industry Association, the Connecticut Public Expenditure Council, the Greater Hartford Chamber of Commerce, and the Insurance Association of Connecticut. All four groups had previously endorsed tax reform.

Among the 65 business leaders who signed the ads are the chairmen of Aetna Life and Casualty Co., The Travelers Companies, and ITT Hartford, and the publishers of The Hartford Courant and the Waterbury Republican-American.

The ad campaign comes as the Legislature meets in special session to try to agree on a state budget for the fiscal year that begins on July 1. The most pressing issue is the state income tax: whether to adopt one, and if so, how to structure the tax.

Although Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. originally proposed a flat-rate income tax, he has since proposed a slightly graduated income tax, and most lawmakers who support an income tax would prefer to see it graduated, with a higher percentage taken from high-salaried workers.

GOP chair seeks second term

HARTFORD (AP) — Two years ago, there was a raucocous scramble for the chairmanship of the state Republican Party. This year, the man who won the chairmanship in 1989, state Rep. Richard Foley, is unopposed for another term.

He quietly announced his plans to run again at the Capitol on Tuesday, a week before the Republican State Central Committee gathers in Meriden to elect officers.

The five-term state representative from Oxford joins the other current officeholders in seeking a new term: Vice Chairwoman Joan Rader, Secretary Maureen Baronian and Treasurer Bob Norman.

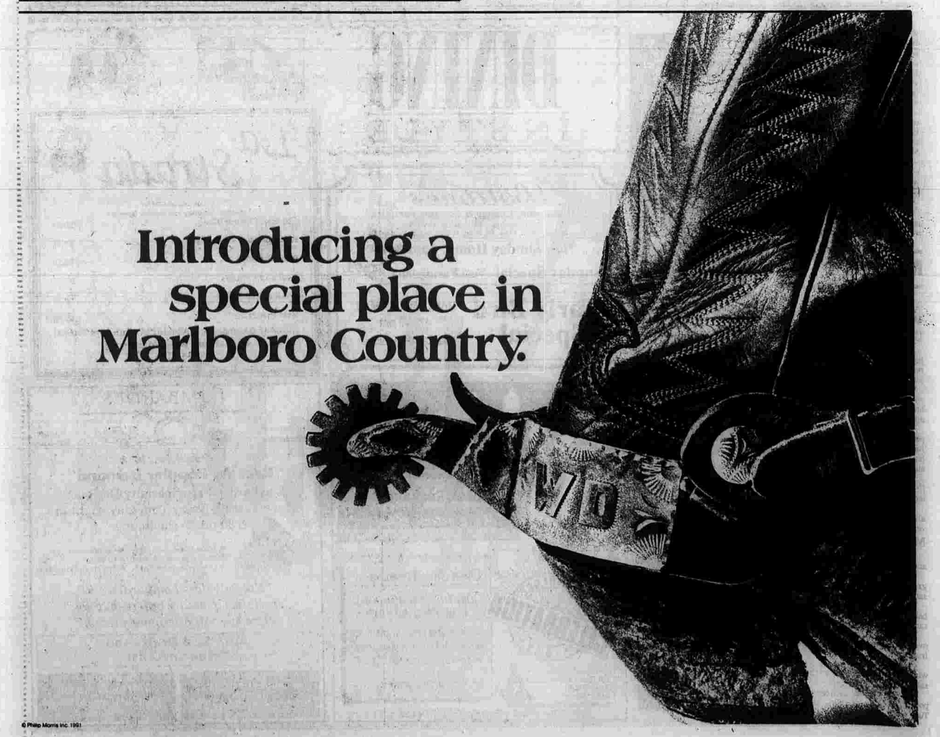

Foley said he has eliminated the party's debt and increased registration during his first two years as chairman. He pointed to the election of Republican Pauline R. Kezer last fall as secretary of the state, the only GOP candidate to win statewide election last year. He didn't mention the defeat of the rest of the Republican slate, including gubernatorial contender John G. Rowland.

Foley said he remains committed to keeping a state income tax out of the final budget package for 1991-92. He said the issue, no matter how it's resolved, will be prominent in the 1992 legislative elections.

He said "virtually all, if not all" Republicans in the General Assembly oppose an income tax. He criticized independent Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., a former Republican U.S. senator, for vetoing a bipartisan plan to impose a no-income-tax budget after telling lawmakers earlier this year that they needed to set aside politics.

"They did so and then he vetoed the bill," Foley said. He said GOP polls show the public is opposed to an income tax by a 2-1 margin, a fact he is using to help convince his legislative colleagues to vote against an income tax.

But, he said, "there's been no threat" of any kind of retribution from the party against anyone who votes in favor of so-called tax reform.

Cooking contest finalist shares her winning recipe

Gary Tucker/Manchester Herald

MMMMMM GOOD — Charlotte Granville is shown preparing her stuffed eggplant during the cooking contest held recently at Manchester Community College. Granville says the recipe provides a healthy, low-fat, low-sugar meal.

MANCHESTER — Charlotte Granville, accomplished cook and winner of numerous cooking contests, described her most recent creation:

"It has a light sauce, and is made with very lean lamb meat," she said. "Not only is it a healthy dish, it's inexpensive, easy to fix, and it reheats nicely."

Granville, of 51 Deer Run Trail, was talking about her Baked Stuffed Eggplant, which took second-place in the "Dinner for Two" Connecticut Cook-off contest held May 29 at Manchester Community College. The contest was sponsored by Connecticut Community Care, Inc., and was open to anyone aged 60 and over. Thirty persons entered.

Entries were judged on the basis of originality, ease of preparation, budget consciousness, and taste.

As second-prize winner, Granville won High Tea for Two, courtesy of the J.P. Morgan Hotel in Hartford.

But due to competition rules, Granville's prize-winning recipe was not released — until now. Here is her recipe:

Easy Baked Stuffed Eggplant

Serves 4
Cooking and preparation time: 1 hour, 45 minutes.
Ingredients:
1 lb. lamb shoulder, trimmed of fat and cut into bite-sized pieces
2 large onions, chopped
1/2 cup pine nuts
2 or 3 tablespoons cooking oil
salt, pepper, cinnamon to taste
2 large eggplants large tomato
3 cups V-8 juice
Preparation:
Filling:
Saute onions in oil until transparent.

Add meat and spices, cook until browned, about 10 minutes.

Casserole:
Peel eggplant and cut about 1-inch thick slices. Remove centers. Arrange slices in a large baking dish.

Fill centers with meat filling and top with leftover pieces of eggplant and slice of tomato.

Pour V-8 over casserole.

Cover and bake 30 minutes at 450 degrees. Reduce heat to 450 degrees, bake 45 minutes more.

To serve: While casserole is cooking, prepare 2 cups of rice. When casserole is done, serve with rice.

First-prize in the contest went to Ted Laimas, age 67, of Waterbury. Here is his winning recipe:

Creamy Lentil Soup

Serves 4
Cooking and preparation time: 50 minutes (excluding 6 hours to soak lentils)
Ingredients:
3/4 cup lentils
1 1/4 quarts of water
1/2 cup oil, olive, sunflower, corn
1 large onion, chopped
1/2 green sweet bell pepper, diced
1 1/2 stalks of celery, chopped finely
1/2 large carrot, sliced and chopped
1 1/2 tablespoons Tarragon vinegar
1/4 tablespoon rosemary as a garnish
1 tablespoon of chives, finely chopped, as a garnish
1/2 small onion sliced thin as a garnish
2 sprigs parsley, finely chopped as a garnish salt and pepper to taste
dash of worcestershire sauce
dash of Redhot or tabasco

Wine guide gets better

NEW YORK (AP) — Attractively designed and illustrated, with more than 7,000 entries, "Hugh Johnson's Modern Encyclopedia of Wine" provides essential information on wines, vineyards and winemakers of the world.

This third revised edition (Simon & Schuster, $35), first published in 1983, is longer (576 pages) and more detailed than its predecessors, with every entry checked and, where necessary, updated, according to the publisher.

It is comprehensive, clearly written and easy to use, designed for both the novice and the connoisseur. In addition to describing the major winemaking regions of the world, Johnson provides sections on buying wines, pairing wines and foods, storing wines, serving wines, tasting wines and choosing glasses.

He takes a fresh look at the wines of the world, from the classics of Bordeaux to the new stars of Chile, eastern Europe and the United States.

Johnson writes that 42 U.S. states now have aspiring winegrowers, with major vineyard areas in California, New York, Michigan, Oregon and Washington. "Their enthusiastic experiments point to the possibility of a far more widespread wine culture in some future enlightened age."

The growth of more than 100 American wineries, new since the book first appeared eight years ago, has been charted. In the introduction to a 40-page section on California wineries, Johnson writes: "It is a dull (and unusual) week in California when another new winery (or wineries) does not announce itself. The yeast of romance and experience is so active that any list is out-of-date before it comes back from the printers."

Yeltsin criticizes Gorbachev

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boris N. Yeltsin, on his first visit to the United States since being elected president of the Russian republic, says he doesn't like Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev very much because the Kremlin leader is inconsistent and bends under pressure.

Yeltsin's slap at his chief of state and erstwhile political rival came just a few hours after he had praised Gorbachev on Tuesday for making possible his victory in Russia's first democratic presidential election.

"To a large extent, I don't like him," Yeltsin said in an interview with Ted Koppel on ABC-TV's "Nightline" program. "He's inconsistent. He has strength for a period of time, and then under pressure from other forces, he may change his decision. That isn't a good thing."

Yeltsin, speaking through an interpreter, criticized Gorbachev for what he called the Soviet leader's "half-hearted decisions, changing his position, he goes first to the right, then to the left. These perhaps are the main qualities which I don't like about him."

Recently, however, after being warned that continued military crackdown in the Baltics and a retreat from the reforms he started would lead to demands for his resignation, Gorbachev maligned himself with the reformers, Yeltsin said.

"Since then, I would call our relations balanced ... pragmatic," the Russian populist said. "There's nothing personal in this at all."

Gorbachev brought Yeltsin into the top ranks of the Communist Party and then fired him three years ago after he complained that Gorbachev was moving too slowly on reform.

Yeltsin's primary message on this first day of his four-day unofficial visit to the United States was to declare Russia open for business.

As leader of the largest and wealthiest of the Soviet Union's 15 constituent republics, Yeltsin said, he did not come to beg.

"We have not come here hat in hand," Yeltsin said. "We have come here to ... assure you we are working for a better future, one which we shall build with our own hands.

"We shall travel your road" toward a market economy and a free enterprise system, the outspoken ex-communist told his first audience at the start of the visit. "We believe that we have left behind the experiment that we had to go through, the one which was called Marxism."

Yeltsin said the Russian parliament will adopt legislation this month to open the republic to foreign investment.

"It will create a beneficial regime for all investors from all over the world to come and set up their enterprises in the Soviet Union, to own them and manage them as they see fit," he said. "And we want them to make a profit, and we believe the people of Russia will benefit because of that."

The blunt-spoken Yeltsin at first appeared sensitive to U.S. concerns that his visit might embarrass Gorbachev, who has the support of the Bush administration.

He said his dramatic election victory over five other candidates last week was made possible by the reforms Gorbachev launched six years ago.

Sources: sanctions near end

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is expected to lift the 5-year-old U.S. economic sanctions on South Africa as early as next month, senior administration and congressional sources say.

By then, the administration is confident that the one remaining condition for the lifting of sanctions — the freeing of all political prisoners — will have been met by the South African government, the sources said Tuesday.

"The predisposition is to lift the sanctions," said one Republican official on Capitol Hill, speaking only on condition of anonymity. "The die is cast," said another.

The officials said the administration wants to deal with the matter quickly now that legislation repealing South African segregation laws has been passed in that country.

Driving the decision, in addition to South Africa's reforms, are the congressional calendar and domestic politics.

The administration would like to resolve the issue before Congress leaves for a month-long recess in August. And Bush's advisers want to dispose of the matter soon so it does not present a political target during next year's presidential election, one GOP congressional official said.

State Department officials already are making soundings of opinion in Congress and watching progress in South Africa in defining which prisoners are being held for political reasons. "They are down to arguing about the status of a couple of hundred people," said one administration source.

In addition, the administration is awaiting a major meeting in July of the African National Congress, the largest black opposition party in South Africa, for signals on how it would receive the lifting of sanctions.

President Bush's son won't appeal S&L order

WASHINGTON (AP) — Neil Bush, who's getting help from family and friends to pay $250,000 in legal fees, is ending a long battle with federal regulators in his conflict-of-interest case.

The president's son won't appeal the government's April order imposing mild restrictions on him if he again becomes a director of a bank or savings and loan, his attorney said Tuesday.

"He wants to put everything behind him," attorney James Neuland said.

Neuland said the final settlement Tuesday of a separate yet related lawsuit, in which Bush was one of the defendants, made his client decide not to appeal the conflict-of-interest order. Neuland has represented the 36-year-old Bush in both cases.

In that settlement, a federal judge in Denver approved the previously announced agreement by which former directors and officers of Silverado Banking, Savings and Loan Association will pay the government $49.5 million to settle a civil suit brought by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. That suit alleged negligence in the $1 billion collapse of Denver-based Silverado.

One-third of Americans face insurance trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — One in three Americans under age 65 have medical problems for which at least some insurance companies charge higher premiums or exclude or deny coverage, an advocacy group said today.

Many of these people have private health insurance and could face premium increases, or have difficulty maintining coverage if they change jobs or otherwise need to get a new policy, said Citizen Action, a consumer advocacy group.

"Private health insurance is no longer something Americans can take for granted and no one is guaranteed that their coverage will be there when they need it," said Robert M. Brandon, Citizen Action's vice president.

The medical problems for which insurance companies limit or deny coverage afflict an estimated 81 million Americans and include common conditions ranging from asthma to back problems, the group said.

Illicit drug users spent up to $50 billion in '90

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans spent some $40 billion to $50 billion on illicit drugs last year, the nation's drug policy chief said today in the government's first effort to put a price tag on retail sales of illegal drugs.

The report estimates "the amount of money America's users actually took out of their pockets, or took out of other people's pockets, to purchase drugs," said Bob Martinez, director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

The study said retail sales of illicit drugs totaled some $40.4 billion last year. Of that, $17.5 billion was spent for cocaine, $12.3 billion for heroin, $8.8 billion for marijuana and $1.8 billion for other drugs.

The total declined from $51.6 billion in 1988 to $49.8 billion in 1989 before dropping again last year, according to the report done by ABT Associates in Cambridge, Mass., for Martinez's agency.

Sununu dismisses attacks from 'self-styled experts'

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — White House chief of staff John Sununu says he's not going to take advice from "self-styled experts" on how or when he travels.

Unlike some, he said Tuesday night, he ventures outside Washington to stay in touch with the public.

"You can't get here without traveling," Sununu told a Republican fund-raiser here. "I know that's a very complicated concept for some."

Sununu has come under fire for using military planes for personal and political travel, and published reports Tuesday said he's solicited trips on corporate jets since the controversy erupted earlier this year. Nonetheless, he got presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater's blessing earlier in the day.

time controller.

Manchester is a "$100 million corporation" and needs a full-time position to handle its finances, Osella said. He pointed to last year's audit report that uncovered deficiencies in the day-to-day operations in the Treasurer's Office.

Democratic Director Stephen T. Cassano asked Osella why he felt such a position needs to be hired instead of elected.

Osella said that an elected official cannot be held accountable for their actions without legal action, whereas town employees can reprimanded or fired for misconduct.

But Cassano argued that the board recently reduced the duties of the Treasurer's Office, and he asked if some of those duties would be reinstated should the town hire a full-time treasurer.

Although a full-time treasurer's main responsibility would be to handle the town's finances, the treasurer could take on additional responsibilities as well, Osella said.

Penny said this week that he would not change his position on keeping an elected treasurer's position. The elected treasurer provides taxpayers with the "one direct source of input into the use of their monies," Penny said.

Osella also disagreed with the recommendation to make the full-time assistant town attorney subject to the personnel rules of regular town employees.

Such a move would create a split chain-of-command and could lead to a potential riff between the town attorney and the town manager should the assistant town attorney have to answer to both of them, Osella warned.

Penny said the commission decided to recommend the change to bring some stability to the Town Attorney's Office.

Cassano, who also argued the attorney issue with Osella, said every time an election changes the structure of the office it takes new appointees months to acquaint themselves with the office's casework.

The Republicans also disagreed with the commission's recommendation not to provide voters with a recall provision for elected officials.

Republican Director Geoffrey Nash said people voted into office are sometimes unwilling or unable to attend meetings. A recall provision, he said, would provide a system for ousting such officials should they refuse to resign.

Cassano and Penny said recall provisions are usually provided only in towns that elect their officials every four years. Cassano also said he was concerned with altercations that might occur with such a provision intact.

Each director agrees that due to the financial climate, now is not the right time to propose doubling directors' salaries.

with the board and possessed the kind of skills that could easily formulate information into policy. He credits her with drawing up a new personnel policy that defined work responsibilities and created a more effective chain-of-command.

According to Morra, Kemp was also responsible for a new computerized program for town financing and the creation of plans for the new recycling program.

It was during a recent board meeting on recycling that Kemp displayed her usual knowledge, and the sense of humor she was known for.

Kemp was trying to explain the town's over-estimate of the amount of garbage to be taken care of by recycling programs, but had to respond to the tittering that came from the audience on the subject.

"This is not funny," she said, trying to keep a straight face. "Garbage is serious business."

The elderly of the town can also credit her, Morra says, for job assistance and the senior van. Kemp was instrumental in obtaining grants for the projects through the state Chore Assistance Program.

Morra said the town will soon advertise for a replacement for Kemp.

"I'm sure there are good people out there," Morra said. "But we valued Helen not just as an employee...but as a friend."

the senators were heading toward a smaller income tax than proposed by Weicker, the movement among their House counterparts is toward a bigger income tax than Weicker's.

House Speaker Richard J. Balducci, D-Newington, estimated there were 50-60 House Democrats in favor of an income tax, still short of the 76 votes needed to get a bill passed in the 151-member House.

House Republican Leader Edward C. Krawiecki Jr. of Bristol said there were no more than five or 10 GOP votes in the lower chamber for tax reform.

It was a similar story upstairs in the 36-member Senate. There are perhaps 15 Democrats in favor of an income tax and one or two Republicans, the partisan leaders said.

It's considered possible that Weicker's lieutenant governor, Eunice S. Groark, who presides in the Senate, may have to cast the 19th vote in the Senate to get an income tax passed.

one, of dozens of provisions.

Rep. Tim Penny D-Minn., proposed to cut $27,000 from a fund in Quayle's office to reflect an estimate of the taxpayer cost of the two-day golf trip. He backed off when managers of the bill agreed to write Quayle noting congressional concerns about discretionary travel.

Traficant, who has been involved in a fight with the IRS over his own tax returns in his pre-congressional days, wanted to retain in the bill a provision requiring an investigation of alleged taxpayer abuses by the IRS. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., whose Ways and Means Committee has jurisdiction over IRS programs, opposed the provision.

It was stricken because it violated rules against setting legislative policy on money bills. Traficant retaliated by raising similar objections that stripped numerous other provisions from the bill.

for one more "shelter bed" in eastern Connecticut, Rosenberg said.

One youth would stay at the home and would receive counseling and participate in therapy with his host family, he said. The services would be provided by AHM Youth Services' five-member staff.

Only non-violent, non-suicidal, drug-free youths would be eligible for the program, which is designed to fit in with regular attendance at local schools, Rosenberg said.

The host family would have to provide a secure environment, and members would be screened for criminal records as part of a complete background check, he said. The home would have to "provide a safe space for adolescents at a crisis period in their lives" and a "cooling off" period for troubled youths.

While YES-3 could use its state funding to create a shelter home anywhere in eastern Connecticut, Rosenberg is concerned about the absence of such a service in the Andover-Hebron-Marlborough area. Currently, troubled youths are relocated far away from their family and school, he said.

AHM Youth Services, and the counseling it provides, is funded 40 percent by the town and 60 percent by private contributions. Rosenberg estimates the organization comes in contact with eight to 10 youths each year who need a shelter home.

The family chosen to run the home will be reimbursed for the expenses they incur, Rosenberg added.

It's another 'non-contest' for Post 102

This time darkness ends game in a tie

Gary Tucker/Manchester Herald

FORCE AT SECOND — Manchester Legion second baseman Lindsey Boutilier fires his throw to first base after forcing an Ellington runner at second during their Zone Eight game Tuesday night at Kelley Field. The contest was called due to darkness after seven innings with the score tied, 3-3.

By KEN VAUGHN
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — It's the game that no one wants to lose.

The Manchester Legion Post 102 squad battled Ellington to a tie for the second time in three days Tuesday at Kelley Field before the game was called after seven innings because of darkness. The contest, which ended 3-3, will be replayed in its entirety later in the season.

On Sunday, the two teams left the field after nine innings knotted 1-1 when rain forced the game to a halt.

The two non-contests leave Manchester with a 5-2 record overall, 2-0 in Zone Eight competition. Ellington, plagued by early season postponements, stays at 0-1.

"Well, I guess you could say that these two teams are pretty evenly matched," said Ellington coach Len Salesky. "I was quite pleased with the way we played, especially since we have such a young ballclub."

Ellington jumped out to a 3-0 lead by scoring all of its runs off Manchester starter Greg King in the third inning. However, Manchester battled back by scoring one run in the fourth frame and two in the fifth, chasing Ellington starter Erik Nord.

Manchester, looking for its fifth straight win, had a chance to break the tie in the seventh inning. Post 102 loaded the bases with one out before reliever Sean Conlin struck out Brian Igoe and David White to thwart the rally and end the game.

"The one positive thing I saw in this game was that we did a nice job of coming back from three runs down," said Manchester coach Bill DiYeso. "However, I did not think that our intensity level was very high tonight. We are a team that has to get up for each game and play on all cylinders, and we didn't do it."

Nonetheless, DiYeso is pleased with his team's record and effort so far this season.

"We're happy to be where we are. We're unbeaten in Zone Eight play, and only a couple of other teams can say that," DiYeso said. "We've been getting good pitching and excellent defense all season. What we need is a little more offense. Someone needs to step up and deliver that clutch hit."

And, if DiYeso's squad does begin to put things together on offense, don't be surprised if Post 102 stays near the top of the Zone Eight standings all season.

"I think this team can be champions," he said. "Right now, the players are hoping more than they are believing, but with a few more wins, they'll start believing in themselves. Right now, we have a winning record, but we're very close to realizing that we can be winners."

Post 102 is off until it competes in the double elimination Keene (N.H.) Legion Tournament, beginning with a game Saturday against a team from Rochester, New Hampshire.

WINNING FORM — Dan Meiser of Vittners shows his winning form on the mound during Tuesday night's game against Police Union. Meiser tossed a three-hitter in his complete-game effort.

In Brief...

Vittners, A&N LL winners

MANCHESTER — The Town Little League Tournament continued Tuesday night with action in the winner's bracket.

At Leber Field, Vittner's wallopped Police Union, 14-1. At Waddell, Army & Navy outlasted Ansaldi's, 9-8, in seven innings.

Vittners was paced by the pitching and hitting of Dan Meiser. Meiser tossed a three-hitter and struck out eight in a complete-game performance. He aided his own cause with two doubles a single and four RBI. Dion Schabazz added three hits while Tim Sullivan aded two hits. Bryan McCaffrey, Sam Loyd, Mike Lurate and Mike Young also played well.

For Police Union, Richard Parker, Dan Lidestri and Vinnie Pavelack hit safely while Philip Holmes and Matt Fink played well defensively.

For A&N, Danny Ortiz's single drove in Mike Driggs with the winning run in the bottom of the seventh. Daryl Rouillard, Ryan Gliha and Chad Gough had RBI hits for the winners with Ortiz playing well behind the plate. Donny Cowell played well in center field.

For Ansaldi's, Dave LaGuardia had three hits with a homer. Will Henghins added two hits while Rich Prenetta, Patrick Kelly and Mike Fleming also played well.

In winner's bracket games on Saturday, Vittner's faces American Legion at 1 p.m. at Waddell while Army & Navy meets Boland Brothers at 1 p.m. at Leber.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Dravecky's left arm was amputated to stop the possible spread of cancer, according to a former teammate. The five-hour operation was performed by Dr. Murray Brennan, chairman of the Department of Surgery at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

Allen Hammaker, one of the Dravecky's best friends when the two pitched for the San Francisco Giants, said he spoke with Dravecky's father, who confirmed the amputation.

Hammaker said Dravecky's father told him that two more tests were taken on Dravecky's arm before the decision was made to amputate. Hammaker now plays for San Diego. He made his comments after the Padres lost 3-1 to Pittsburgh.

Cancer was diagnosed in Dravecky's arm in 1988.

Newcomer Cochrane knocks out Red Sox in the ninth

By DAVE O'HARA
The Associated Press

BOSTON (AP) — After bouncing around, mostly in the minor leagues, for more than nine years, Dave Cochrane hopes he's found a home with the Seattle Mariners.

"You might say I got back from Calgary just in time," Cochrane said Tuesday night after he drove in the tie-breaking run with a ninth inning single that lifted the Mariners to a 2-1 victory over Boston relief ace Jeff Reardon and the Red Sox.

An infielder with just one year and one month experience in the major leagues, Cochrane has spent most of the 1991 baseball season learning how to catch. So after he flied out as a pinch hitter in the eighth inning, he stayed in the game as the catcher and got another shot at bat in the ninth.

"I've stayed in baseball because I love the game and because I make enough money playing and managing a car dealership in the offseason to support my family," Cochrane said. "I've found I really enjoy catching. Now I'm hoping it will help me stay here with Seattle."

Cochrane, only 28, was recalled from Calgary of the Pacific Coast League last Thursday. In his first three games, as a third baseman, he went 5-12 with 6 runs batted in. Then he watched from the bullpen until he got the call with the Mariners trailing the Red Sox 1-0.

"He's done quite a job for us the last few days," Seattle manager Jim Lefebvre said. "Here's a guy who came in as a pinch hitter and we can keep him in there because he can catch. That's a valuable man to have around."

The Mariners shocked the Red Sox, who were just two outs away from their eighth shutout of the season. However, Boston remained one point ahead of Toronto in the AL East race as the Blue Jays lost to the New York Yankees.

Boston starter Danny Darwin blanked Seattle for 7 2-3 innings and the Red Sox held a 1-0 lead as Tony Fossas got the final out in the eighth.

Reardon (0-2) struck out the first batter he faced, Edgar Martinez, but Alvin Davis lined a single to left and gave way to pinch runner Alonzo Powell. Greg Briley batted for Jay Buhner and singled to right. Powell raced to third and then scored as Kevin Romine's throw took a wild bounce for an error.

Briley reached third on the overthrow, then scored as Cochrane hit a 2-2 pitch into center.

Seattle starter Bill Krueger, who allowed nine hits but only one run while striking out six in eight innings, earned his fourth victory in six decisions while Mike Jackson got his 10th save.

Roughing up top short relievers is nothing new for the Mariners. They just added Reardon to their previous victims, including Dennis Eckersley, Rick Aguilera, Gregg Olson, Doug Jones and Jeff Montgomery.

"When Reardon came in the guys on the bench started talking like, 'Hey, another closer, we're going to score some runs,' and we did," said Krueger (4-2).

"We've had a lot of success against closers this year," Krueger said. "Don't ask me why, we just have. And I've had pretty good success with the Red Sox and I don't know why."

"This one was a big one for us, especially coming early in a road trip and that guy (Roger Clemens) pitching tomorrow ... Shoot, winning this game makes a big difference," Lefebvre said.

"It's a tough loss, but the guys in here know it's going to happen every now and then," said Darwin, who had nothing to show for 7 2-3 scoreless innings.

"It was a tough game to lose," Boston manager Joe Morgan said. "We had them all the way, but not at the end. Roger's got to do it again after a loss tomorrow."

Clemens (9-3) puts a 72-20 career record after a Boston loss on the line tonight in the windup of a two-day visit by the Mariners. He is due to be opposed by Rich DeLucia (6-3).

One streak remains alive in Minnesota

By BEN WALKER
The Associated Press

At least there's one streak still alive in Minnesota.

A day after the Twins got their 15-game winning string stopped, Scott Erickson won his team-record 11th straight decision as Minnesota beat Baltimore 9-2 Tuesday night.

Erickson (11-2) gave up a leadoff double to Mike Devereaux, but did not allow another hit in six shutout innings. He overcame five walks, partly the result of a two-hour rain delay before the game at Memorial Stadium.

Erickson, perhaps the best pitcher in baseball that few people have ever seen, leads the majors in victories and ERA (1.51).

"Lately, when we talk about Scotty, we've always been dealing with superlatives and flowery type adjectives, and then when he doesn't look real good, you notice," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "But it's hard to say he wasn't sharp."

Erickson is no stranger to streaks. Last month, he stopped Texas' 14-game winning string.

This time, he got the Twins going again following a disappointing 6-5 defeat in which Baltimore rallied for three runs in the ninth inning.

"It's just like the 15 in a row," Erickson said of his success. "We had it going and we lost it. You can't get too caught up in it. One of these days I'm going to get it given to me pretty good."

The Twins made it easy for Erickson, scoring two runs in the first inning and four more in the second against former teammate Roy Smith (3-1).

"We were down six runs before I looked up," Baltimore manager Johnny Oates said. "Smith looked awful nervous out there. I don't know if it was because he was facing his old team. ... He looked like his heart was beating 50,000 times a minute."

Smith's struggle gave Orioles starters an 11.10 ERA in the last eight games.

"I wanted to beat them, sure, but to say I was nervous, no," Smith said. "I wasn't pressing. It's not like if I threw a shutout they would regret getting rid of me."

Royals 12, Rangers 5: George Brett hit a three-run homer and Kansas City stopped Texas' seven-game winning streak.

Brett's second homer of the season broke a 5-all tie in the fifth inning. The Royals added four runs in the eighth on six singles.

Brett has hit 31 home runs against the Rangers, 19 at Arlington Stadium. He has connected more against Texas than any other team.

Kevin Appier (4-7) struggled for five innings before Luis Aquino pitched four scoreless innings for his first major league save. Reliever Kenny Rogers (4-6) got tagged for seven runs on eight hits, including Brett's 283rd career homer, in 3 2-3 innings.

Tigers 2, Athletics 0: Frank Tanana blanked Oakland for 8 2-3 innings and Mike Henneman got the last out as host Detroit handed the Athletics their second consecutive shutout.

Cecil Fielder broke a scoreless tie in the seventh inning with a double off Bob Welch for his major league-leading 52nd RBI. Mickey Tettleton followed with a run-scoring single.

Welch (6-4) pitched a three-hitter, but still had his streak of 13 consecutive June victories stopped. Tanana gave up four hits and got career strikeout No. 2,500.

Yankees 2, Blue Jays 1: Scott Kamieniecki won his major league debut as New York stopped a six-game losing skid at the SkyDome.

Kamieniecki, 27, gave up two runs on nine hits and four walks in six innings. He helped himself by picking off two runners, and nearly got a third.

Reliever John Habyan added the Yankees' third pickoff of the game in sending Toronto to its third straight loss. Steve Farr got two outs for his seventh save.

Kevin Maas, Jesse Barfield and Matt Nokes hit RBI singles off Mike Timlin (5-4), who lasted only 3 2-3 innings.

Brewers 10, Angels 6: Paul Molitor's leadoff homer sparked a seven-run first inning, and Milwaukee held off visiting California.

Jim Gantner singled twice in the first inning, and he and Greg Vaughn hit two-run singles. Willie Randolph's two-run double finished Joe Grahe (0-1), who did not retire a batter.

Dave Winfield's two-run homer capped a five-run rally in the fifth off Teddy Higuera (2-2). Dan Plesac struck out Wally Joyner with the bases loaded to end the eighth, and finished for his third save.

White Sox 6, Indians 5: Robin Ventura hit Chicago's first grand slam at the new Comiskey Park, and the White Sox extended Cleveland's losing streak to six games.

Charlie Hough (4-3) survived two home runs by Carlos Baerga and one by Mike Aldrete. Tom Candiotti (7-5) lost in the matchup of knuckleball pitchers.

Ventura hit his third home run of the season and first career slam in the sixth inning for a 6-5 lead. An error by shortstop Felix Fermin with two outs set up the slam.

Martinez, Foley rescue the Expos

By JOHN KREISER
The Associated Press

Montreal manager Tom Runnells would be happy it if his club could produce more offense. His Houston counterpart, Art Howe, would settle for more wins.

The Expos were outhit 8-4 by the visiting Astros Tuesday night, but used two key throws by right fielder Dave Martinez in the top of the 12th and Tom Foley's RBI single in the bottom of the inning for a 3-2 victory, Montreal's fifth straight win.

"I'd like to see the offense produce a few more runs," Runnells said after the Expos beat the Astros in extra innings for the second straight night despite getting only half as many hits as the visitors. "But at least the hits are timely."

So were the two throws by Martinez, who gunned down pinch-runner Mark Portugal trying to go from first to third on Craig Biggio's single off Bill Sampen (5-1), then ended the inning by gunning down Biggio at the plate as he tried to score from second on Gerald Young's base hit.

"The first throw was tougher because I had to go to my left and throw across my body," Martinez said. "The second play was a straight two-hopper right at me, so I just came up throwing."

After Martinez preserved the tie, the Expos won the game in the bottom of the 12th when Mike Fitzgerald walked, stole second and scored when Tom Foley lined a 2-0 pitch from Jim Corsi (0-4) into right field for Montreal's fourth hit of the game.

Dodgers 6, Cubs 5: Eddie Murray ended a 4-hour, 53-minute marathon, the longest NL game by time this season, with an RBI single in the 13th as the Dodgers outlasted the visiting Cubs.

Chicago went ahead in the 11th on Shawon Dunston's RBI single and again in the 12th on a run-scoring infield hit by Ryne Sandberg, only to have the Dodgers rally each time. Chris Gwynn's RBI triple in the 11th made it 4-4 and Mark Grace's throwing error in the 12th on what would have been the last out of the game tied the score at 5-5.

Mets 7, Reds 5: The Mets wasted Howard Johnson's grand slam but won anyway when Kevin McReynolds' pinch-hit RBI single off Rob Dibble in the eighth broke a tie.

Johnson's third-inning grand slam gave the Mets a 5-2 lead, but the visiting Reds got single runs in the fifth and seventh before Chris Sabo tied it in the eighth with a sacrifice fly off Alejandro Pena (3-0).

But the Mets loaded the bases against Randy Myers (3-5) before McReynolds singled through a drawn-in infield against Dibble for the go-ahead run. Catcher Jeff Reed's error allowed an insurance run to score.

Pirates 3, Padres 1: Jay Bell's tie-breaking two-run single in the top of the ninth gave the Pirates their second straight win in San Diego.

Cardinals 3, Giants 1: Bob Tewksbury allowed four hits and an unearned run in eight innings for the visiting Cardinals as San Francisco lost its third straight.

Tewksbury did not allow a runner past first base until the eighth, when Robby Thompson reached on an error and scored on Steve Decker's double.

Phillies 8, Braves 4: Wally Backman celebrated his 1,000th major league game with three doubles and former Atlanta star Dale Murphy hit a two-run homer at Philadelphia.

Backman's first double triggered a four-run first inning as Pete Smith (1-1) managed only one out. Murphy hit his 11th homer of the season in the fifth inning, tying him with Johnny Bench for 26th on the all-time list with 389.

Bristol's Lachance obscured by the presence of Eric Lindros

By TOM COYNE
The Associated Press

HARTFORD – While Eric Lindros has drawn the raves, Scott Lachance has quietly drawn strong reviews as a hockey player with great potential.

Those reviews, from NHL scouts, describe a defenseman who can carry the puck offensively and play solid defense. Lachance hopes those traits will be enough to make him the No. 2 pick in Saturday's NHL draft in Buffalo.

If he is picked that high, the Boston University defenseman would become only the fourth American to be selected that early.

"It's a great feeling," Lachance said from his Bristol home. "It's not definite. There are a lot of good players available."

Lindros is a lock to be picked first. The expansion San Jose Sharks, who own the second draft pick, said they will take right wing Pat Falloon, defenseman Scott Niedermayer or Lachance.

But Hartford general manager Ed Johnston said he has no doubt the Sharks will take Lachance. Johnston said Lachance has the talent to go that high, and has the added attraction — for an American team — of being an American.

He also is expected to play on the U.S. Olympic hockey team this winter before beginning his NHL career, which likely would give him and the attention-hungry Sharks plenty of notoriety.

"There are a lot of plusses in taking a guy like him," Johnston said. "The U.S. Olympic team is going to be in the forefront. It's an Olympic year. When he comes out, they can get more impact."

Most of the draft's focus has fallen on Lindros, the most highly regarded prospect since Mario Lemieux in 1984, and whether he will play for Quebec if the Nordiques keep the pick and draft him.

But Lachance said he doesn't mind that the 6-5, 228-pound Lindros has overshadowed the draft news.

"He's taking the pressure off us. It's unfortunate for him because he's had to live up to all those expectations. The rest of us didn't have so many expectations to live up to," Lachance said.

But expectations are high for Lachance.

"He can do everything," Johnston said. "He can play offensively and defensively. In the World Junior Championships he played very well, and he played well in the last couple of games in the NCAA championships. He plays well in big games. He steps it up and comes up with the big play at the right time."

NHL scouts say one of Lachance's biggest strengths is the lack of a glaring weakness. He scored five goals and assisted in 19 others in 31 games for Boston University this season.

He has good size (6-2, 205 pounds) but needs to work on his strength, said Ken Schinkel, the Whalers director of hockey operations.

Lachance said he was put on a weight program during his freshman year at Boston University and he believes he's getting stronger.

Lachance said he doesn't see the pressure of being drafted so high as being overwhelming.

"For some reason I don't see it as pressure. I see it as a chance to show what I can do," he said.

Only two Americans have ever picked No. 1 overall in the draft, Brian Lawton by Minnesota in 1983 and Mike Modano by Minnesota in 1988. Jimmy Carson was taken second overall by the Los Angeles Kings in 1986.

The Whalers would love to draft the home-state boy, but Johnston sees little chance of that with Hartford picking ninth.

Analyzing the full deal

By Phillip Alder

Sometimes at top bridge tournaments there is an auditorium in which spectators may follow the play at one featured table. The hands are displayed on a screen, the bidding and play are relayed through from the playing room, and expert commentators describe the action, often making predictions.

If you have ever been to one of these presentations, you know that occasionally the players diagnose a deal better when looking at only 25 cards than the commentators do looking at all 52. Sometimes it is hard to see the proverbial forest for the equally proverbial trees.

How well can you analyze a full deal? Examine today's hand and decide the fate of declarer's contract of three no-trump, West leading a low diamond.

The first key play comes at trick one: South should duck East's diamond king. He wins the second diamond and takes the heart finesse. East wins with the king and returns his last diamond. Declarer wins and cashes the heart jack, seeing the 10 drop. Only now does he turn his attention to clubs, cashing the ace and finessing dummy's jack. East wins with the queen and switches to a low spade.

Here is the second key play: South should put up the spade king. He knows West holds two winning diamonds and must therefore be kept off lead if possible. That makes the spade king the right play. Then, now the contract goes down three (was that your answer?) instead of only two. But at the table West really had the spade queen and East the spade ace. When declarer put up the spade king, it won and he made an overtrick.

Astrograph

Your Birthday — June 20, 1991

You may become involved in some type of unique enterprise with a relative in the year ahead. It could prove to be mutually beneficial, provided both parties do what each promises.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's bad enough to take foolish risks with your own resources today, but it is inexcusable to gamble on things that could negatively affect others. Be both careful and considerate. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If your budget has taken a few lumps lately, don't point the finger of blame solely at your mate. Each of you is accountable for a deficit position.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll want proper acknowledgment and praise today for things that go well. However, you may feel things that go wrong should be blamed on them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your financial curves could be like the will o' the wisp today. What you gain on the one hand might quickly fly out the window on the wings of another venture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's best not to involve yourself in endeavors that are too time-consuming today. You're a good producer while your enthusiasm lasts, but unfortunately it might not be of long duration.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you don't want to be the topic of other people's conversations today, it's best you don't pass on as gospel information that you've obtained through the gossip line.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Make it a point to draw a fine line today between business and pleasure. Deals you attempt to make while socializing aren't likely to jell.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If negotiating a commercial matter today, carefully evaluate your offer. Don't dilute your own position just because you're anxious to make a deal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Partnerships have both advantages and disadvantages today. An enterprising ally could help upgrade your initiative while simultaneously steering you down a blind alley.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be quite lucky today in situations that have material overtones, but you may not fare equally as well where personal relationships are concerned. Try to be a star in both areas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Where your career is concerned, don't make any type of agreement today which you may later have to renege. A broken promise could take a lot of luster off your image.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Even though you're apt to be energetic and enterprising today, you might't channel it in ways that produce productive results. Don't let mishaps replace method.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Golden 50th gift glitters garishly

DEAR ABBY: My husband's parents will soon be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. My husband has two brothers and two sisters. His sisters decided, without consulting us, that all the children would chip in and send their parents to Hawaii as their anniversary gift. They have already told their parents, who are thrilled about it.

The problem is, the sister whose idea it was is the only one who can afford such an expensive gift. The rest of us are barely making it from paycheck to paycheck.

My siblings and I bought our parents a set of dishes for their 50th. We would have loved to send them to Hawaii, but we knew they wouldn't enjoy it knowing we would have to take out a loan to pay for it.

I am more than a little resentful that my parents got dishes while my in-laws will get a trip to Hawaii. (My parents are no less deserving.)

I have polled my friends and co-workers from all levels of income, and they agree that a trip to Hawaii isn't a typical anniversary gift — it is excessive.

— BURNED UP AND BROKE

DEAR BURNED UP: A trip to Hawaii is not an excessive anniversary gift for people who can afford it. However, one or two members of a family have no right to decide on any gift "from all the children" without having consulted all of them. And to have told the parents before discussing it with all the siblings was inexcusable.

DEAR ABBY: My father sent for your booklet "What Every Teen Should Know," and asked me to look it over to see if it would be helpful to my 12-year-old daughter. (She is his granddaughter.)

I read the booklet and thought that the way you approached all of the subjects was just great. I decided not just to hand her the booklet, but to read it with her so we could discuss it. Now she feels very comfortable talking with me about all the subjects that young girls wonder about, but are afraid to bring up. It broke the ice.

Now my daughter will always come to me with questions because she knows I will always be there to listen to her and guide her. Thank you from the bottom of my heart for caring about our young people.

— GRATEFUL MOM IN LYNN, MASS.

DEAR GRATEFUL: I, too, am grateful. Thanks, Mom; your letter made my day.

PEOPLE

■ Milli Vanilli pretenders Robert Pilatus and Fabrice Morvan are faking it again, but this time they want everyone to know.

Pilatus and Morvan were stripped of their Grammy as last year's best new artists when it was revealed that they didn't really sing on their album and were lip-syncing at their concerts.

They pretend to sing again in a commercial for Care-Free Sugarless Bubble Gum.

In the commercial, the two mouth the words to an Italian opera.

When a record malfunctions and their ruse is exposed, an announcer says: "How long does the flavor last? Until these guys sing it for themselves."

Chuck Wallington, spokesman for Planters LifeSavers Co. in Winston-Salem, N.C., said the supposed singers are still very popular with the gum-chewing 15- to 17-year-old crowd.

■ David Letterman's Top 10 List is in search of a new home office, and the Albuquerque Convention and Visitors Bureau has 10 reasons why its city should be the place.

Letterman, whose top 10 list is a mainstay of "Late Night With David Letterman," introduces each list by saying it comes from "the home office in Lebanon, Pa."

But the local visitors bureau has heard he's thinking of moving the home office, said bureau staffer Denise Suttle.

Here are some of the reasons why Albuquerque thinks it has earned the honor:

"There are more stupid pets per capita in Albuquerque than in any other city."

"Since we're the hot air balloon capital of the world, you can do your show 1,000 feet up (far away from any strange woman claiming to be your wife)."

"It's been proven that our dry climate actually reverses the balding process, causing men to grow thick manes of silky hair."

"More people watch Letterman's show in Albuquerque than any other city that has two Q's in its name."

And the No. 1 reason: "In Albuquerque, we think that Arsenio Hall is a long corridor designed by an Italian architect."

■ A dozen protesters picketed the Los Angeles high school where math teacher Jaime Escalante's intense teaching methods made him famous, accusing jealous teachers and administrators of pressuring him into quitting.

"There is professional envy against him," said Bertha Plantillas, a parent.

Escalante, 60, announced last week he was leaving Garfield to teach at Sacramento's Hiram Johnson High School.

"The time has come to leave," he said. "Math and politics don't mix."

His success in teaching college-level calculus to students at Garfield, situated in a tough, impoverished section of the largely Hispanic East Side, was the subject of the 1988 movie "Stand and Deliver," starring Edward James Olmos.

■ Dancing is a lot like chicken pox, says choreographer Agnes de Mille. It usually hits people when they're young, and while it's rarely fatal, it's not something one gets over easily.

Miss de Mille made her remarks Tuesday at a luncheon at the Metropolitan Opera where she was awarded the American Ballet Theater's first American Treasure award.

Her acceptance speech also included a ringing endorsement of the arts.

"The arts teach us what we are, why we are and how we are," she said.

Seek counsel for chronic anxiety

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you discuss chronic anxiety? My doctor hasn't been much help, and I'm hoping you have a suggestion.

DEAR READER: Chronic anxiety, the vague feeling that something's not right (coupled with a diffuse fear of unnamed future catastrophes), is probably the closest thing we have to a real 1990s epidemic. Most people, at one time or another, experience anxiety about life and the world at large. Therefore, a modest degree of anxiety is normal. Unlike people who rant and rave about every little uncertainty, I believe that some anxiety is a part of the human condition.

Nonetheless, severe anxiety can be disabling. Often the cause of the anxiety is easily recognizable: fear of new challenges, death, divorce, worry about one's children — you know what I mean if you're over the age of 12, especially if you are a parent. In these instances, the temporary use of anti-anxiety prescription drugs, such as Xanax and Ativan, may tide people over their periods of stress.

However, drugs are not appropriate for long-term management of chronic anxiety. Counseling is often helpful. Meetings with a psychiatrist, psychologist, social worker or experienced clergy frequently put issues into better perspective, enabling patients to cope more effectively and achieve a better balance in their lives.

Remember that anxiety is actually a state of mind, a perception. Events and situations that produce numbing anxiety in one person may be routine for another. Therefore, most people will feel relieved once they realize that they don't have to be victims of their anxieties. They truly have the choice about whether or not to be anxious. This is where counseling is really important.

If your doctor has been unable to assist you with your anxiety, I suggest you investigate one of the resources I mentioned. With the judicious use of anti-anxiety medicine and counseling, I'm sure you can be helped.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Mental and Emotional Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

ASK DICK KLEINER

DICK KLEINER

Q. Is Keenan Wynn still living? — P.J.Z., Anchorage, Alaska

A. No. He died in 1985.

Q. I've had this question for years, hoping to catch a re-run to check the credits. Is the actor who plays the son of William Bendix on the old series "The Life Of Riley" a young Jan-Michael Vincent? — E.N., Erie, Pa.

A. No. An actor named Wesley Morgan played Junior.

Q. Where is Julie Sommars ("Matlock") from? My maiden name was Sommars, and I've never known of anyone else who spelled it that way. — P.S.D., Caldwell, Idaho

A. Julie comes from Fremont, Neb., if that helps.

Q. Sometime ago, I saw an old movie from the '30s. It was about two men and a woman who shared their lives, and I think it was from a Noel Coward story and that Gary Cooper and James Stewart were the men. Can you give me the title and the woman star? — M.R., Ventura, Calif.

A. It may be you are remembering the '33 film "Design For Living," with Cooper, Fredric March and Miriam Hopkins.

Q. Did Donna Mills play Ken Howard's girl friend on "Mayberry RFD" years ago? — Mrs. B., Warsaw, Ind.

A. You mean Ken Berry, not Ken Howard — and his main girl friend was played by Arlene Golonka.
